Purpose of this Presentation:

To make the process of public education and government less mysterious

Government

YOU ARE HERE

Goal for the Presentation:

To create a roadmap for advocacy

The broader context is confusing...

GOVERNMENT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

While the structure of the city is complex, the choices individual parents make for their child's educational journey is impacted by the structure.

So...

*Understanding how government works is vital.
Making the system work for you and understanding how to engage with each of the key players is essential.*

Question:

In this broader context, where do you see yourself?

Do you understand how public education fits into this equation?

Let's take a step back...

In DC, we have mayoral control of schools.

But...the Mayor's control over public schools is not equal...

Mayor Muriel Bowser

§ 38–172. Mayor's authority; rulemaking.

(a) The Mayor shall govern the public schools in the District of Columbia.

The Mayor shall have authority over all curricula, operations, functions, budget, personnel, labor negotiations and collective bargaining agreements, facilities, and other education-related matters, but shall endeavor to keep teachers in place after the start of the school year and transfer teachers, if necessary, during summer break.

(b) The Mayor may delegate any of his authority to a designee as he or she determines is warranted for efficient and sound administration and to further the purpose of DCPS to educate all students enrolled within its schools or learning centers consistent with District-wide standards of academic achievement.

Essentially, the Mayor has control over
DC Public Schools.

Mayoral Control of Public Schools:

"School districts are traditionally controlled by a locally elected school board, which makes decisions about how schools are run, including hiring and firing the...[Chancellor of DCPS]. Mayoral control, however, is a shift in the power structure wherein mayors are given a greater degree of authority over schools."

Providence	Yes	Yes	No – nominating process and city council approval
Washington, D.C.	Full mayoral authority
Mixed models
Baltimore	Joint appointment with governor
Philadelphia	Joint appointment with governor

Breakdown: The Public Education Governance Structure

The Mayor's Education Designee: Who is the Deputy Mayor for Education?

Deputy Mayor Jennifer Niles

Deputy Mayor for Education is the Mayor's designee responsible for developing and implementing the Mayor's vision for academic excellence and creating a high quality education continuum from birth to 24 (from early childhood to K-12 to post-secondary and the workforce).

§ 38–191. Department of Education; establishment; authority

"...responsible for the planning, coordination, and supervision of all public education and education-related activities under its jurisdiction, including development and support of programs to improve the delivery of educational services and opportunities, from early childhood to the post-secondary education level, including the District of Columbia Public Schools, public charter schools..."

"Promote, coordinate, and oversee collaborative efforts among District government agencies to support education and child development as it relates to education, including coordinating the integration of programs and resources..."

Adding more clarity: What parents know...

Schools:

Roles Within the Building

Roles/Responsibilities of Teachers:

- planning/preparing lessons
- managing classroom behaviors
- assessing/evaluating student learning
- identifying difficulties and learning problems

Roles/Responsibilities of School Administrators:

- shaping a vision of academic success for all students
- creating a climate hospitable to education
- cultivating leadership in others
- managing people, data, and processes
- improving school leadership

But...

parents & families have questions about the unique complexities of our system...

What's the Difference: DCPS v. Public Charter Schools

DC Public Schools?

The District of Columbia Public Schools (DCPS) is the traditional system of public schools in the District. DCPS is a system of neighborhood, matter-of-right schools, with some selective school options, and is required to serve all students in DC.

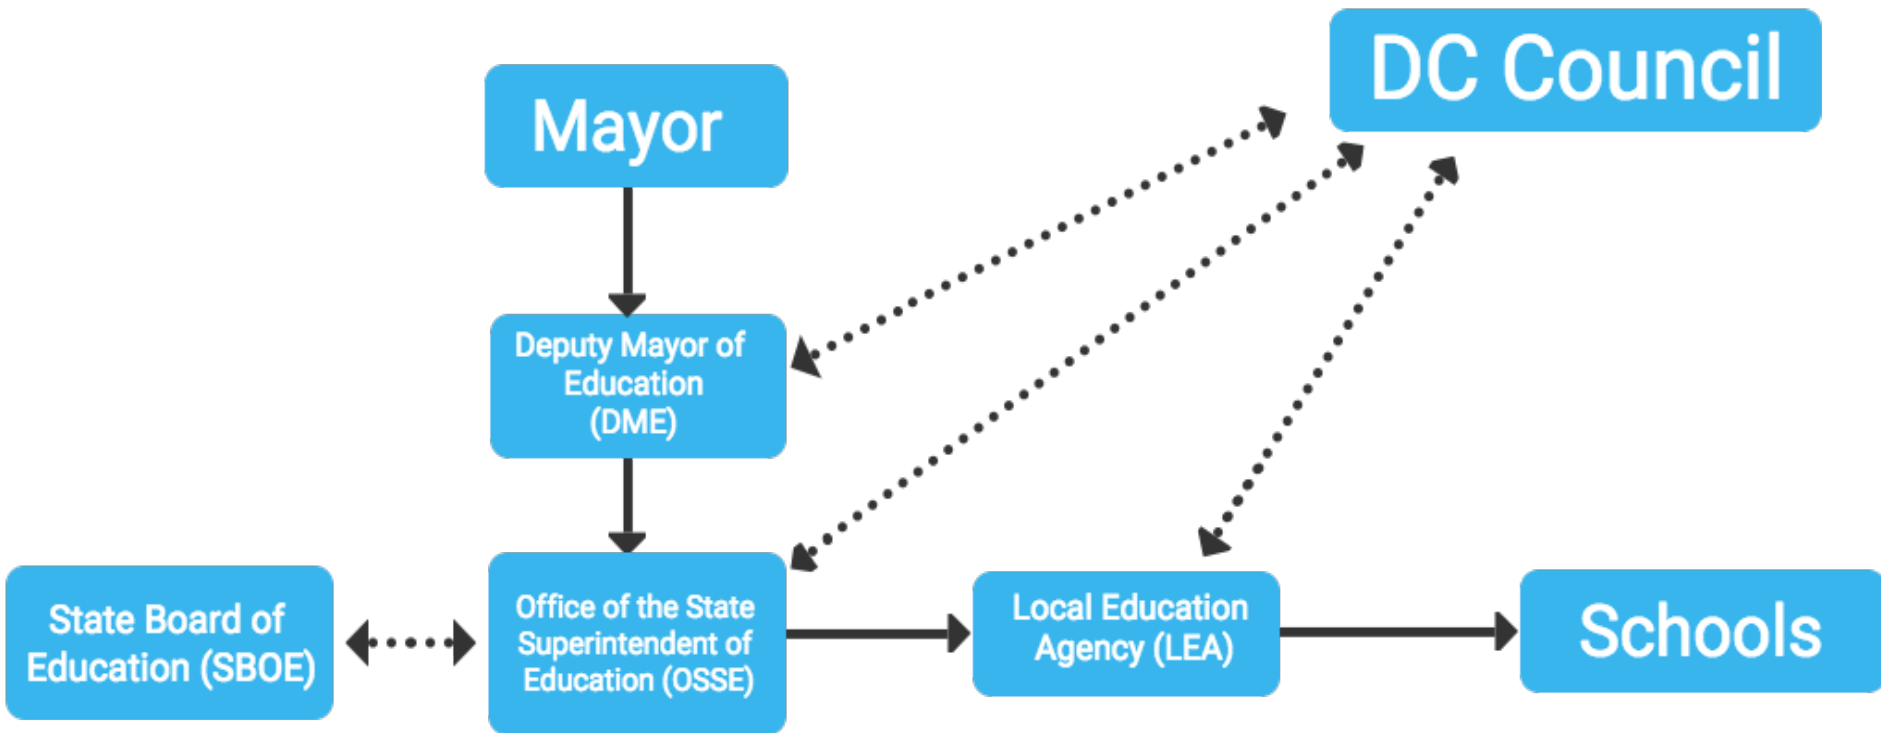

As a DC government agency, DCPS is under direct mayoral control and is subject to DC Council performance and budget oversight.

Public Charter Schools?

Charter schools are independent public schools that are free to innovate and are held accountable for student performance. They are publicly funded, tuition-free, and nonsectarian. Like traditional public schools, they are open to all DC residents and receive public funds according to how many students are enrolled.

A public charter school exercises exclusive control over its expenditures, administration, personnel, and instructional methods. While the DC Public Charter School Board, an independent DC government agency, is subject to some mayoral and DC Council oversight, the exclusive control individual charter LEAs have means they are not under the direct control, or oversight, of the mayor or the DC Council.

The Deeper Context: How It All Connects

What are Local Education Agencies (LEAs)?

"...a public authority legally constituted within a state for either administrative control or direction of, or to perform a service function for, public elementary schools or secondary schools in a city, county, township, school district, or other political subdivision of a state, or for a combination of school districts or counties that is recognized in a state as an administrative agency for its public elementary schools or secondary schools."

DC Public Schools (DCPS)
individual public charter networks are (i.e. Kipp, Friendship, or DC Prep)
local education agencies or school districts.

What It All Means...

We essentially have 60 plus school districts in the District of Columbia. And... each of the school districts, or LEAs, has their own policies and procedures.

DCPS has policies and procedures which are subject to our city regulations, code, and significant governmental oversight.

Public Charter Schools have the autonomy to create their own policies, with some considerations from DC Public Charter School Board or OSSE guidance.

A few examples...

Local Education Agency Leadership Roles

Using the DCPS Structure as an Example

Roles/Responsibilities of the Chancellor

- central authority of DCPS, the traditional public school system in the district
- delegates authority of education programs the Deputy Chancellor for Social Emotional Academic Development and the Chief of Elementary Schools and Chief of Secondary Schools

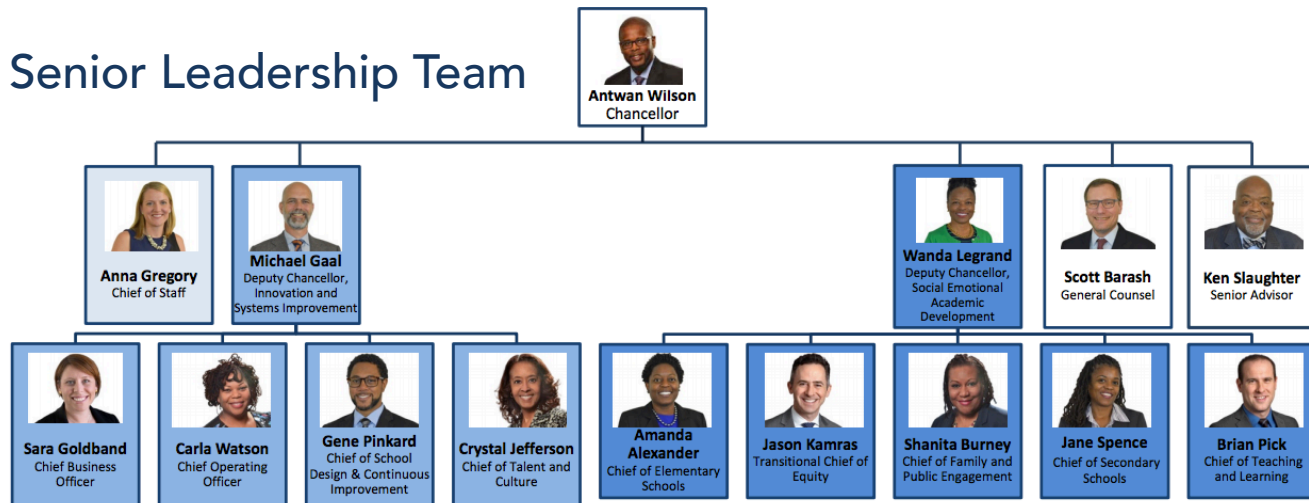

Roles/Responsibilities of the Chiefs of Schools

- both the Chief of Elementary Schools and the Chief of Secondary Schools delegate oversight of individual schools to Instructional Superintendents

Roles of Instructional Superintendents

- manages clusters of individual schools

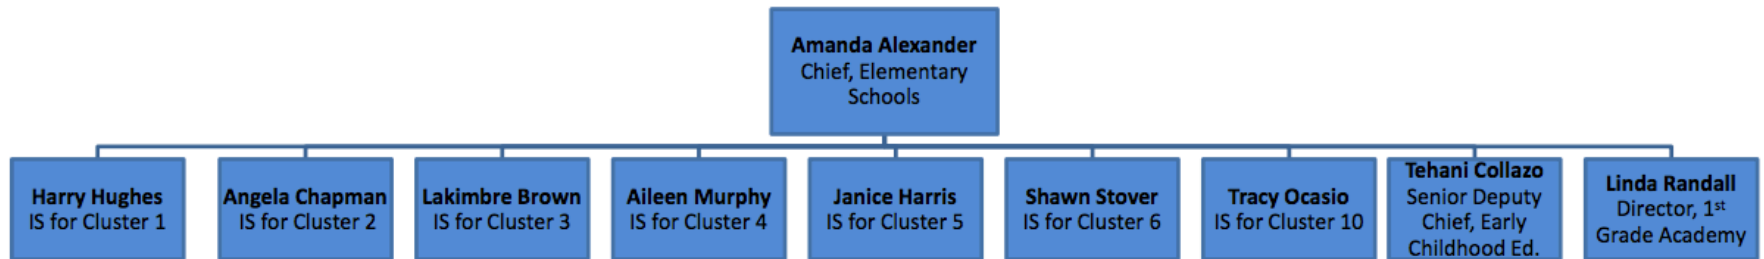

DCPS Senior Leadership Team

Local Education Agency Leadership Roles

Using the DCPS Structure as an Example

DCPS Office of Elementary Schools

DCPS Office of Secondary Schools

Local Education Agency Leadership Roles

Public Charter School Networks

Public Charter School Networks has a different LEA structure and leadership roles. More about the organizational structures for each public charter LEA can be found on their individual website or on the DC Public Charter School Board's website
<http://www.dcpsb.org/find-a-school>

The Role of DC Public Charter School Board (PCSB)

PCSB authorizes public charter schools in DC. After the comprehensive application process and approval of a public charter school's charter, PCSB provides oversight and support to the schools it authorizes.

The DC Public Charter School Board is governed by a seven-member Board, nominated by the Mayor, with the advice and consent of the DC Council. The volunteer Board approves new schools, provides oversight to schools while in operation, and revokes a school's charter if they fail to meet their performance goals.

The members of the Board delegates its power to run the daily functions of PCSB to the Executive Director, Scott Pearson.

Office of the State Superintendent of Education (OSSE)

OSSE is the state education agency for the District of Columbia. OSSE sets statewide policies, provides resources and support, and exercises accountability for all public education in DC. Provides information, policy guidance, and resources on education matters to local education agencies (LEAs) and parents.

The State Superintendent of Education, Hanseul Kang, leads the work of the DC state education agency (OSSE).

OSSE's relationship to public schools

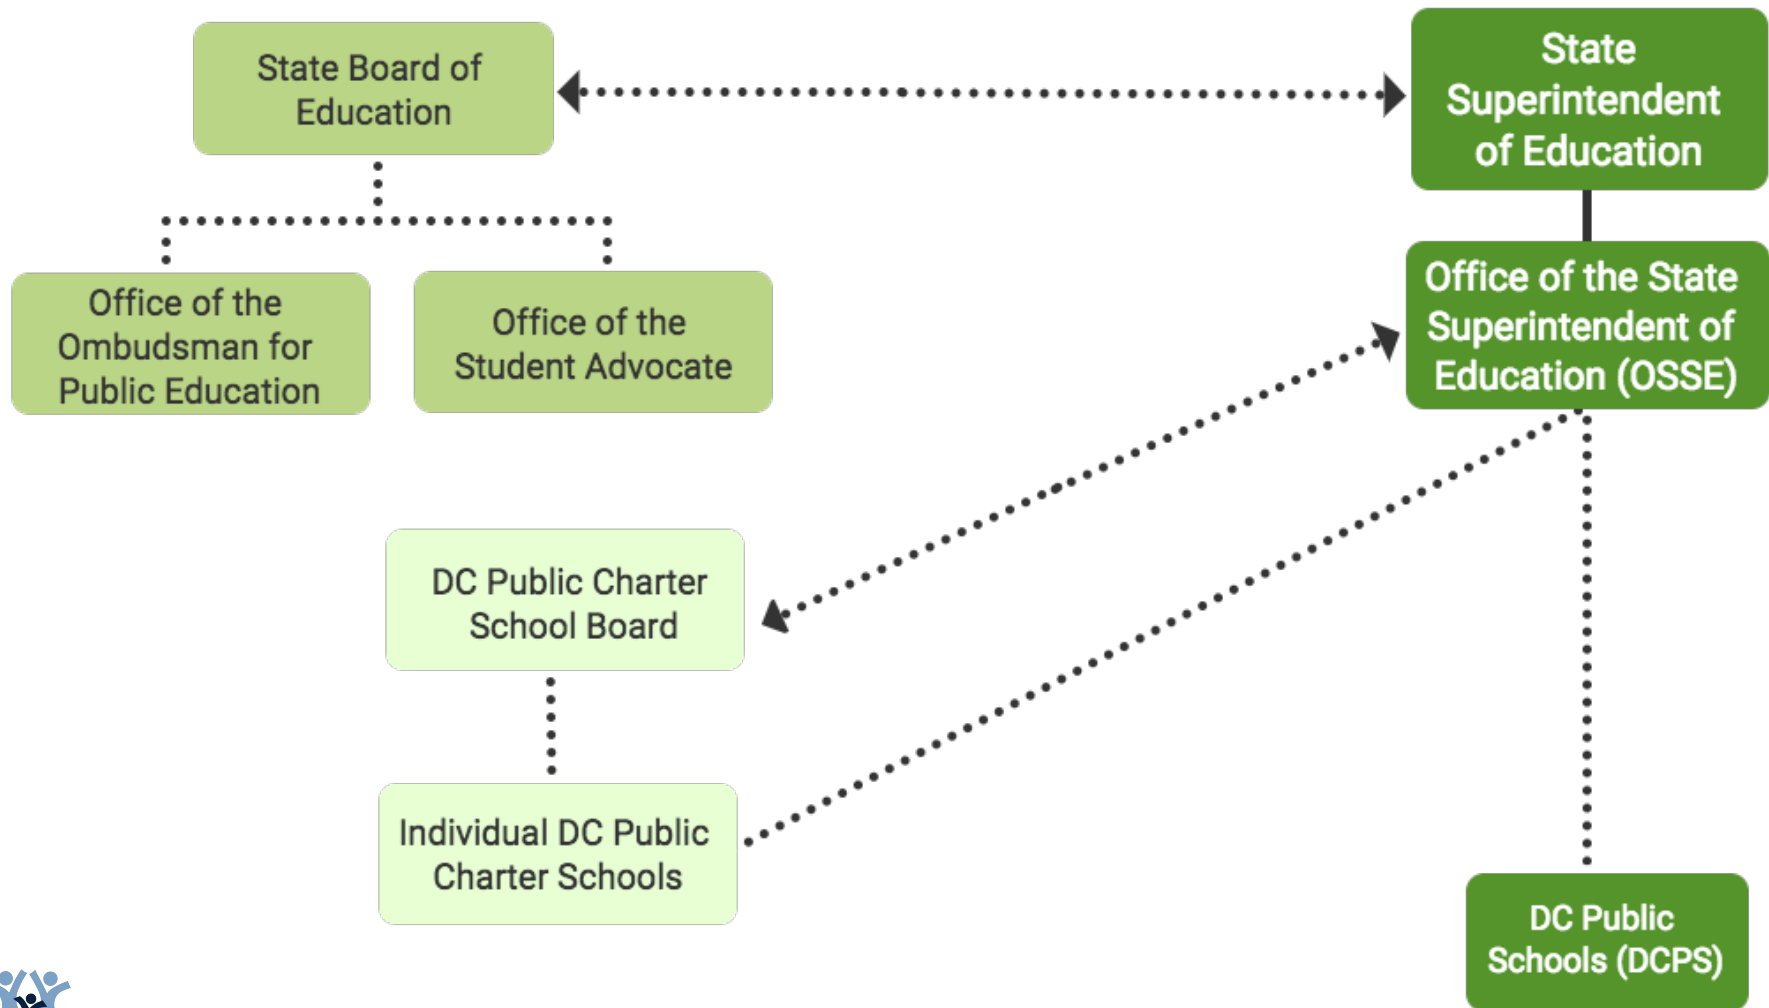

Programs that OSSE supports include:

- Adult and Family Education
- Assessment and Accountability
- Credit Flexibility – Waiver to Award Competency-Based Unit(s)
- DC ReEngagement Center
- Early Learning
 - Provides leadership and coordination to ensure that all District of Columbia children, from birth to kindergarten entrance, have access to high quality early childhood development programs and are well prepared for school.
- Educator Licensure & Accreditation
- Elementary & Secondary Education
- Grants Management and Compliance
- Higher Education Licensure Commission
- Wellness and Nutrition Services
- Postsecondary Education
 - (includes: DC Tuition Assistance Grant Program (DCTAG) and DC Leveraging Educational Assistance Partnership (DCLEAP).
- Public Charter School Financing & Support
 - Manages several federally funded programs for public charter school facility financing.
- Race to the Top
- Special Education Transportation (DOT)
- Specialized Education
 - Provides the public with access to information about special education related services, approved placements and direct on line connections to helpful documents.
- Statewide Longitudinal Education Data System (SLED)
 - The Statewide Longitudinal Education Data System (SLED) is a single, comprehensive repository of student and education-related data needed to improve education planning, management, reporting, instruction and evaluation.
- Office of Dispute Resolution

The Council of the District of Columbia

As the central and chief policy-making body for the District of Columbia, the Council's mission is to provide strong, innovative and effective leadership for the benefit of residents across the city. The Council's central role as a legislative body is to make laws and is responsible for the oversight of multiple agencies, commissions, boards and other instruments of District government. The Council also plays a critical role in maintaining a balanced budget and the fiscal health of the District of Columbia government.
